Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis on Tuesday formally announced a petition with the Supreme Court of Florida to impanel a statewide grand jury to investigate “any and all wrongdoing in Florida with respect to COVID-19 vaccines.”

“In Florida, you know, it is against the law to mislead and to misrepresent, particularly when you’re talking about the efficacy of a drug,” DeSantis said.

DeSantis, in a tweet, said he would hold the medical establishment accountable by creating a grand jury to investigate mRNA COVID-19 vaccines and vaccine makers, cardiac-related deaths tied to the shots and will form a public health integrity committee to oversee the medical establishment.

DeSantis said the new public health committee would be led by Florida Surgeon General Joseph Ladapo, who recommends against giving COVID-19 shots to children and has questioned vaccine efficacy. Ladapo said the state would work with the University of Florida to study autopsy results of individuals who died suddenly after receiving COVID-19 vaccines.
